The Chinese symbol, the Yin-Yang, reminds us of the eternal opposites that are with us throughout our lives. We learn to live in a world in which our moods alternate and the conditions that shape our lives change. We, each, are separate and apart, but with a common will we seek the same.

Yet, through these opposites, there lies a sense of unity,
for without one we wouldn't know the other.

In order to keep everything equal we need the weights of opposites to balance the scales of life.

So while all these contrast with one another,
they also work in harmony
together.

With rain and sunshine they create the beauty of a rainbow, and when we reach the end of a rainbow, there is our pot of gold . . .
accomplishment.

Denise, I hope you're a real good friend. I hope you can get together to do something this summer. Maybe we can go to the beach or maybe you could show me about your pictures. This is a great idea. I'll see you next year. I'll see you before next year. I'll see you forever.

Students Study

Life

The Social Studies Department had fewer classes this year but started two new courses. One was a class which stressed the improvement of reading skills. The other was named "Lifestyles" which dealt with teenage pregnancy. Oddly enough, or planned perhaps, "Lifestyles" was taught by a pregnant Ms. Geyer.

Even with the fewer courses, enrollment increased. Students still take an interest in the study of how people live.

1. Mr. Kite displays his halo. 2. Mr. Lyon ponders on the state of affairs. 3. Mr. Dole listens intently. 4. Ms. Geyer parties with her friends. 5. Mr. Smith strolls through the campus. 6. Greed is written all over Debbie Emerson's face as she wins monopoly money from Debby Schenk. 7. Fuzz McDaniel and Jack Padia get help from Mr. Hopkins.

Art Adds Color

Since a new sense of self-understanding and self worth is an urgent need of young people today, the Art Department, through their courses, tried to help students express themselves.

"Art is a very personal thing," says Ms. TeSelle, and we try to help our students discover the joy of creating tangible manifestations of themselves."

This year, they emphasized fine art awareness by offering more classes of an expressive nature. In the spring, they offered a new water color class which was well-received.

1. Ms. TeSelle grades a ceramic pot. 2. Mr. Havemann relaxes outdoors. 3. Sheila Hanley and (4) friends pose with their first prize window painting. 5. "I don't know why I love you like I do," sings Ms. LaVoie. 6. The senior mural gets the finishing touches.

Music, Festivals Gratify Human Spirit

"We would like to introduce everyone to a foreign language and to the culture of other countries. I feel that foreign languages are very important and everyone should be exposed to them," comments Mrs. Marshall, Spanish teacher.

The growth of the Foreign Language Department has shown a steady rise. There are 155 students enrolled in Spanish classes today as contrasted with 12 seven years ago.

Aside from learning academics, learning languages is also fun through experiencing the games, films, and festivals of other countries.

1. Ms. Beltz, German and French teacher, enjoys a battle of wits with Pete and Rod Glenister. 2. Music instructor Mr. Wright, takes a moment away from his podium. 3. Mrs. Marshall exhibits her usual happy smile. 4. The music in language is apparent for Ms. Belluomini, English teacher. 5. Ms. Vrankovich comments on verse with a student.

Skills Sneak up

1. Ms. Munson relaxes between Career Decision Making classes. 2. It's intermission time for Mr. Hogan. 3. Ms. Canobi works with some students in the classroom. 4. Mr. Hansen hopes for better drivers. 5. A student gets a helping hand from Ms. Durr.

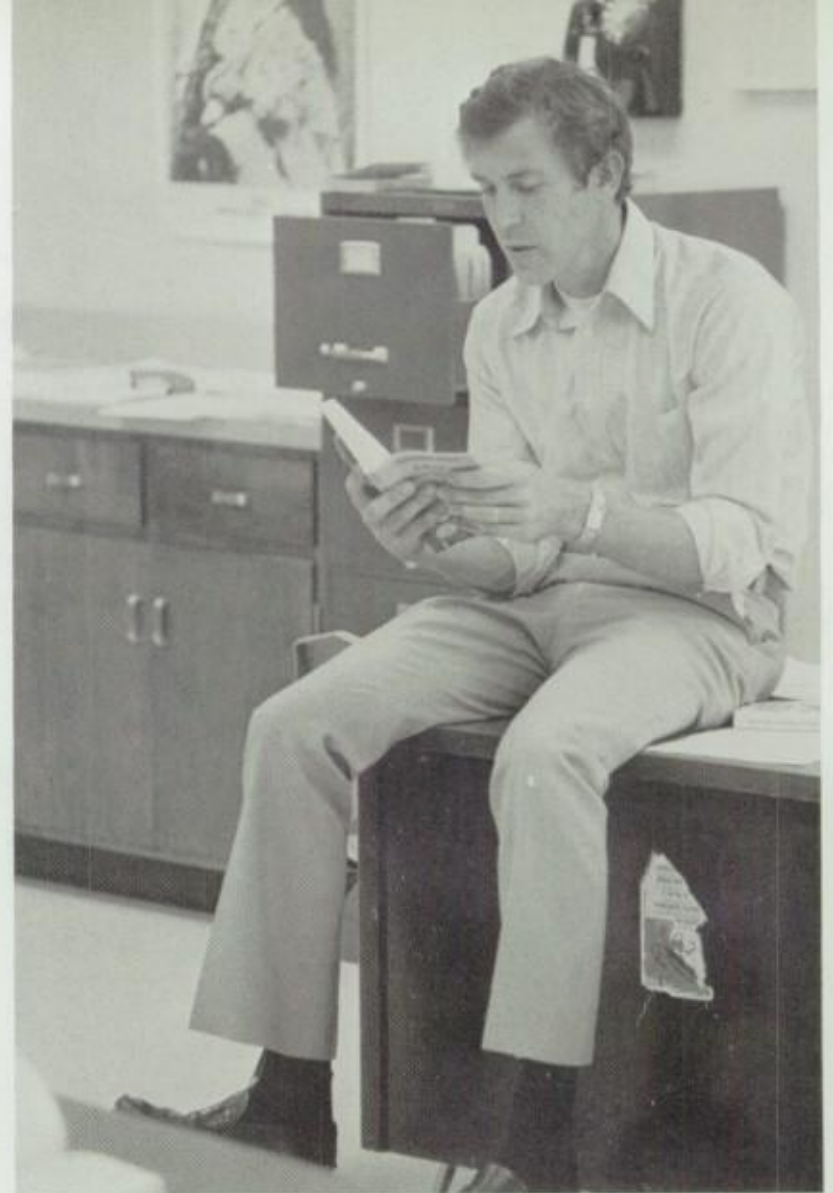

Composition Expands

A few changes were seen in the English Department this year "with the addition of three new kids on our block", Ms. Caviness remarked, naming Ms. Vrankovich, Mr. Severson, and Ms. Short.

Two new classes were added to the curriculum. Speech and Discussion was taught by Ms. Higgins and American Westerner by Mr. Owen.

1. Mr. Severson discusses the finer points of the book with his class. 2. Ms. Vickers-Barr shares the humor of a novel with her class. 3. Dean Martellaro and Marina Kreager consider possible changes suggested by Mr. Owen. 4. Charmed by her students, Ms. Caviness displays her pleasure. 5. Mr. Vast checks up on Tom Palmer.

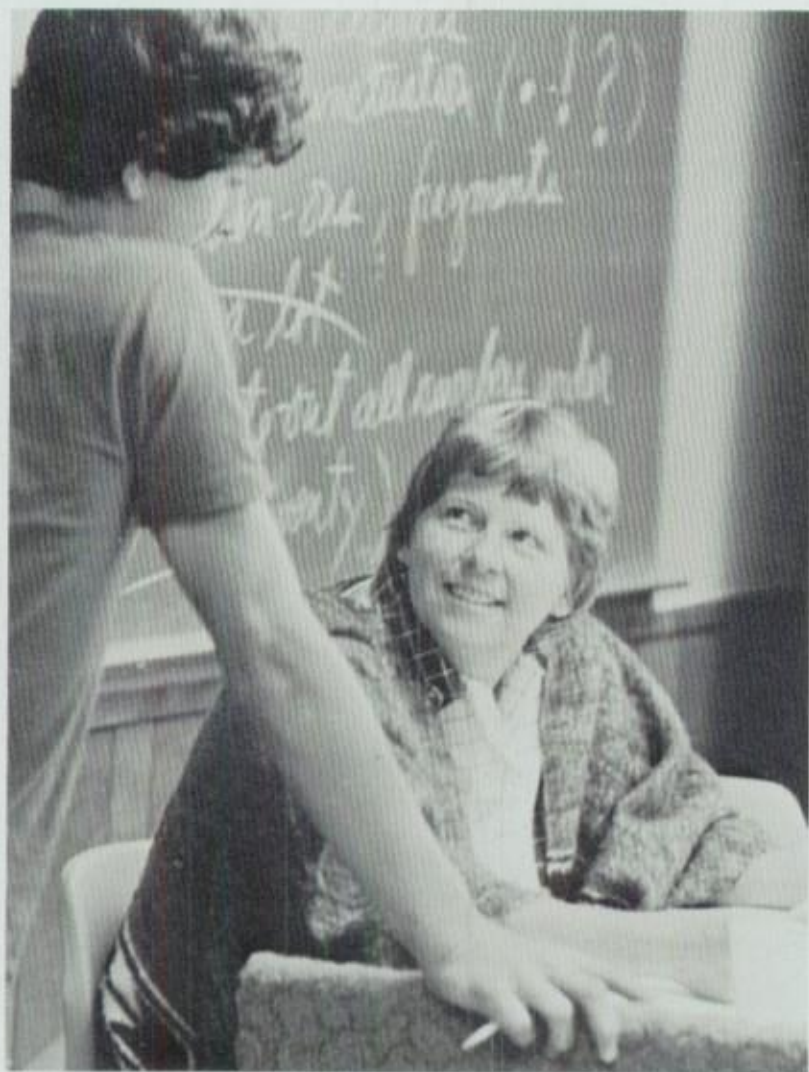

Mr. Fugji, an English teacher from Japan, visited last fall and observed the American way of teaching English in various classes.

1. Ms. Platin looks through student compositions. 2. Students participate in class discussion with Ms. Higgins while Mr. Fugji looks on. 3. Cheery Ms. Sonnenstein basks in the campus sun. 4. A student's work attracts Ms. Short's attention. 5. Ms. Lewis welcomes students through her open door.

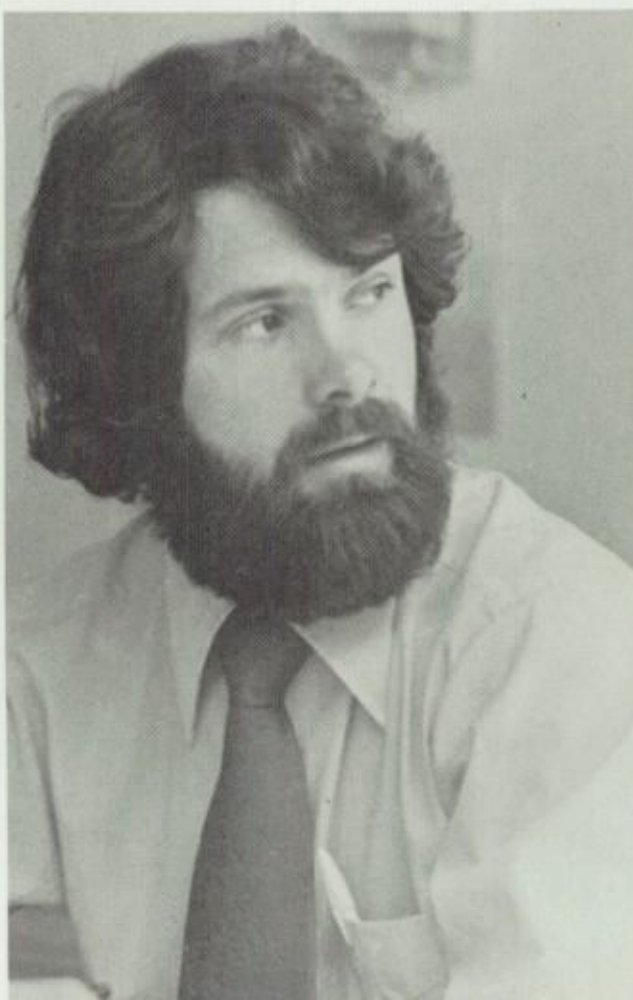

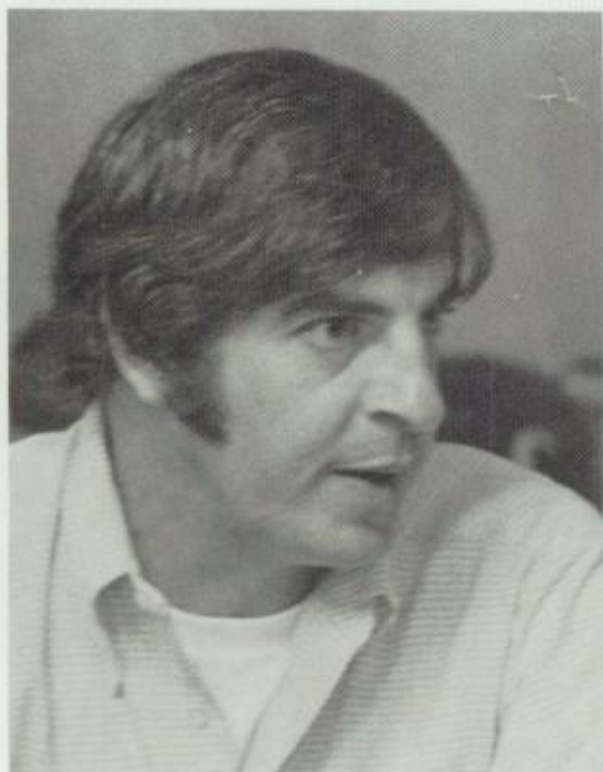

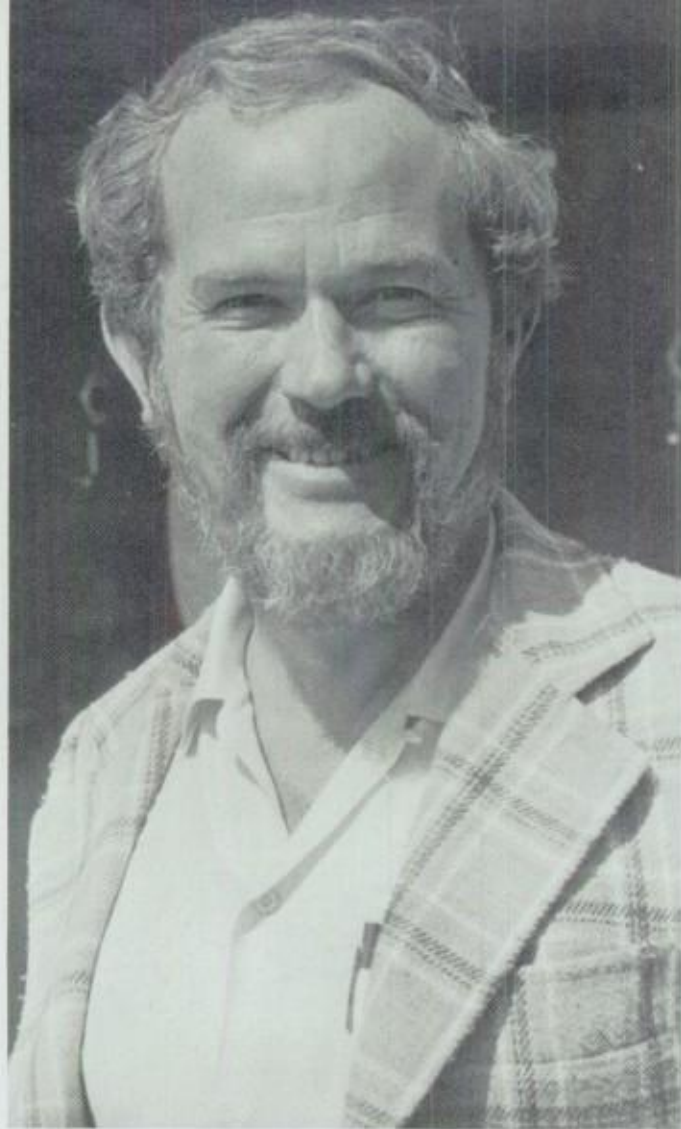

Labs Stimulate Learning

With Mr. Mancini back, and Mr. Kozik's arrival at Rancho Cotate, the Science Department was very strong.

"Our school," bragged Mr. Buhn, "has one of the best Physics labs in the district." The students relished the department's emphasis on lab work. They also appreciated the ecological attitude of the biology classes.

1. Mr. Buhn demonstrates equipment. 2. Students observe Mr. Bettencourt's instructions. 3. Mr. Mancini gives the assignment. 4. Mr. Fowle is in deep thought. 5. Mr. Alton enjoys the campus.

Problem Solved!

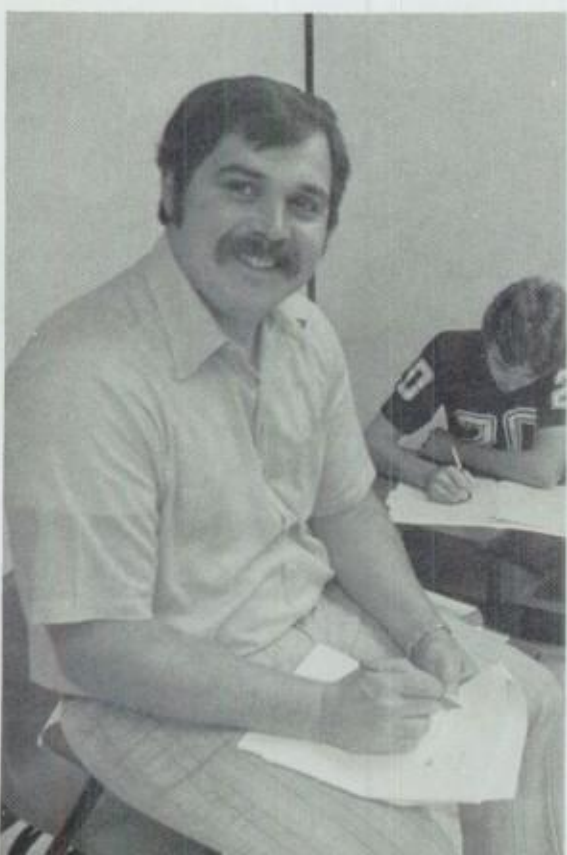

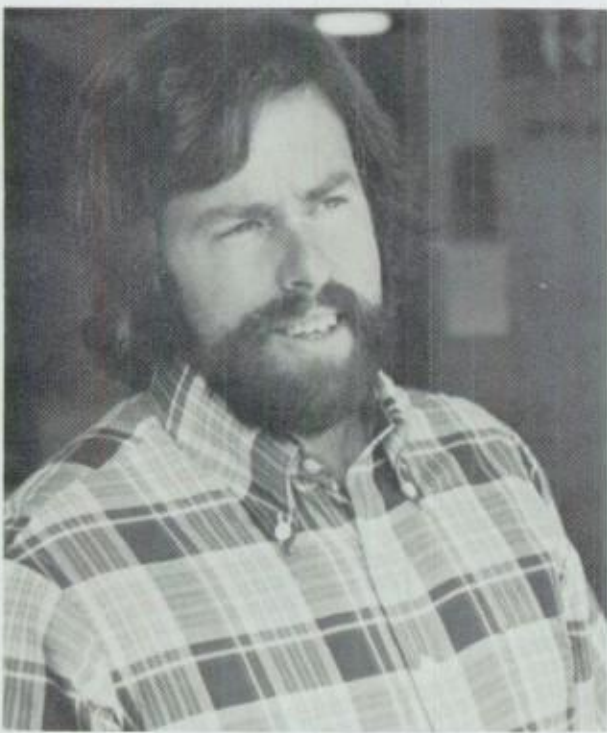

The Math Department grows stronger and gains more students each year.

"Math forms the basis of much of what we do in life," says Mr. Davis, "even if we are not mathematicians." Obviously, many students agree.

The goals are simple and direct; the department wants to teach students logical problem-solving. It is preparing students for the future by giving them a solid understanding and knowledge of math.

1. Mr. Davis' infectious smile greets the students. 2. Ms. Brown seems pleased with results. 3. Mr. Kozik waits for answers. 4. Mr. Laguens gives a lecture. 5. Mr. Larssen and Roger Farah see the humor. 6. Mr. Filipini checks the answers. 7. Mr. Peterson picks up his mail. 8. Mr. Pedgrift explains a theory.

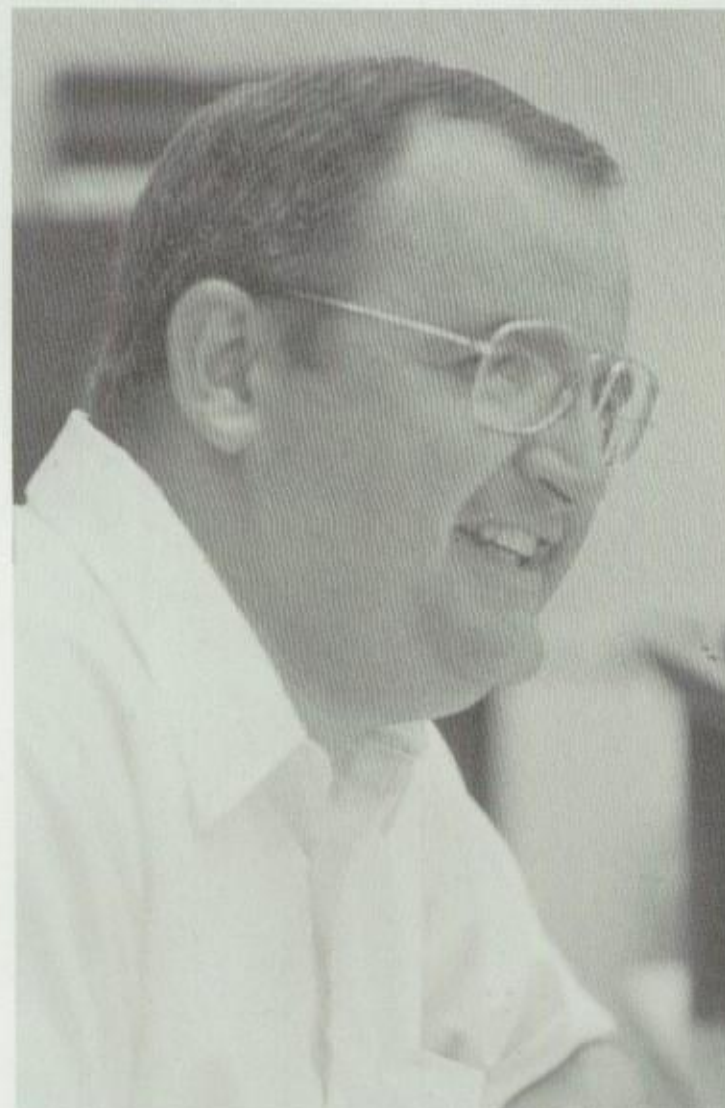

Business Creates Leaders

The Business Department has had a steady growth.

In the department, students learn marketable skills in Typing, Shorthand, Basic Accounting, and Business Law.

A very qualified teaching staff, headed by Hank Sarlatte, has sent many students on to satisfying careers. Others utilize the department to find out if they are interested enough in an office career to go on to college.

"Education goes in spurts," says Mr. Sarlatte, "with students at the tail end of the 'relevancy' craze. Students, today, are definitely victims of the system."

1. Mr. Robbins takes a few minutes from teaching Math to relax in the sun. 2. Explaining to his students, Mr. McCrea points out the importance of proper fingering. 3. Mrs. Kolb, Math, displays her BRAIN (damage). 4. Mr. Sarlatte enjoys the wits in his business class. 5. The progress of her typing students delights Ms. Schuler. 6. Cheryl Bonomi is assisted with her shorthand by Ms. Fedge.

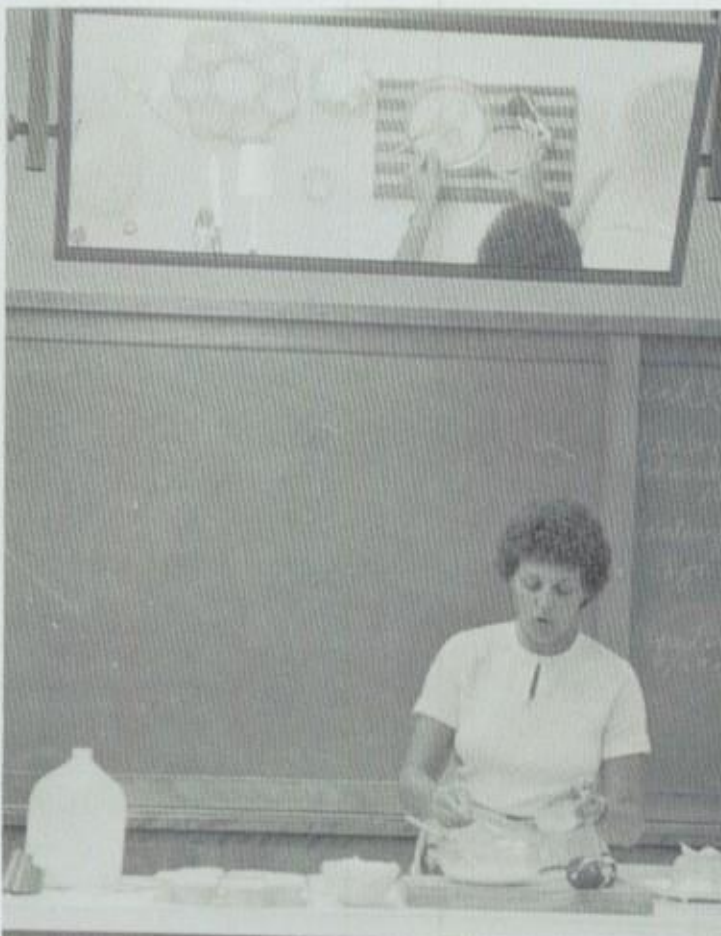

Homes will Operate Skillfully

Home Economics is the basis of everyday life. Things like cooking and sewing are almost a must for one to live.

Their courses become more popular each year. Many students, including the guys, enrolled in cooking and sewing this year.

1. Gina Morales checks her work with Ms. Quackenbush. 2. Ms. Hope demonstrates for her food classes. 3. Ms. McGowan cheerfully accepts student work.

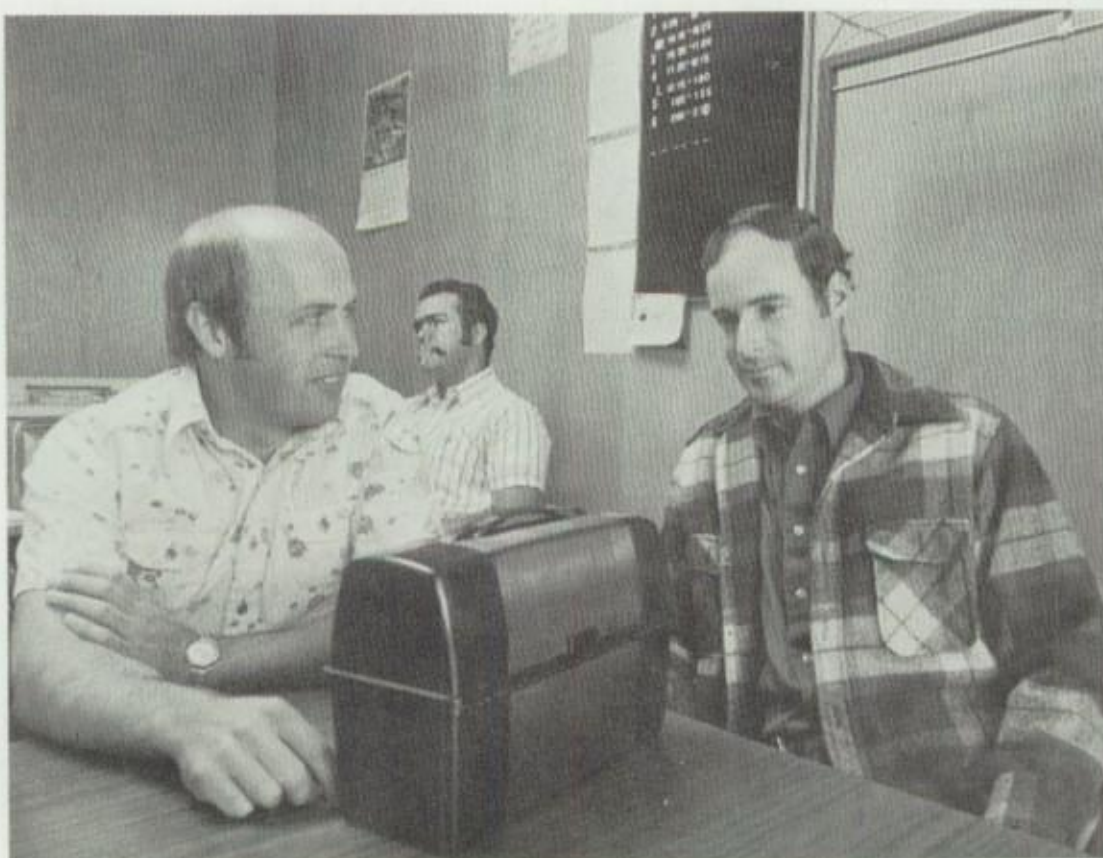

Kids Bolt It Up

With five very well equipped areas of education, taught by a well experienced staff, headed by Mr. Lombardi, the Industrial Arts area was never quiet. With a constant surge of new students, all classes were running five periods a day.

"Our students do fairly well recognition wise at the Sonoma County Fair," beamed Mr. Lombardi.

1. Mr. Oakes demonstrates the proper use of an extinguisher. 2. Mr. Lombardi takes a phone call. 3. Mr. Beltzner and Mr. Badger decide who gets the lunch box. 4. Mr. Harm catches his finger in some equipment.

P. E. Shows Variety

The P. E. Department offered 25 different activities this year, ranging from field games to yoga. The variety of classes gave the students a chance to expand their physical and emotional being and allow them real choices.

1. Ms. Leach squints at the blur going by. 3. Ms. McKenna enjoys a windy day outside. 3. Mr. Francis tries to fly to class. 4. Mr. Smith checks the class count, while (5) Mr. Dougherty looks busy. Not pictured: Mr. D. Francis and Ms. Miller.

Administration Stays Busy

Rancho Cotate goes through changes every year. This year, Mr. Daggett, principal, noticed that school spirit, student participation, and the overall morale was on the upswing.

Part of this may be attributed to the efforts of Mr. Janney, Dean of Students, who worked with students in controlling vandalism and increasing good class attendance.

1. Mr. Daggett takes care of business over the phone and (2) in person. 3. Mr. Keller anticipates a good lunch in R.O.P.

"I want to make every attempt I can to make this school a better school," said Mr. Janney.

Mr. Brock felt optimistic about the school also, saying, "We have a good school here. There is good attendance at the games. There have been more Yearbooks and Student Body cards sold than ever before." He heartily agreed with Mr. Daggett about the student school spirit, adding, "There's a good young Freshman class."

1. Mr. Janney talks with students on campus. 2. Superintendent Lesly H. Meyer conducts a meeting. 3. Mr. Brock holds up the wall.

Mr. Keller, vice principal, added, "The Rancho Cotate students and teachers are the mellowest in Sonoma County. There are many little stupid things that students, teachers, and administration have to do to keep the school running smoothly. Everyone seems to just take things in stride."

He was also enthusiastic about unification, "I'm looking forward to Rancho being the only high school in the new district because we will be able to do our own thing without having to get other high schools to agree. We will also be able to more easily offer students a coordinated program from kindergarten through high school."

Need Help?

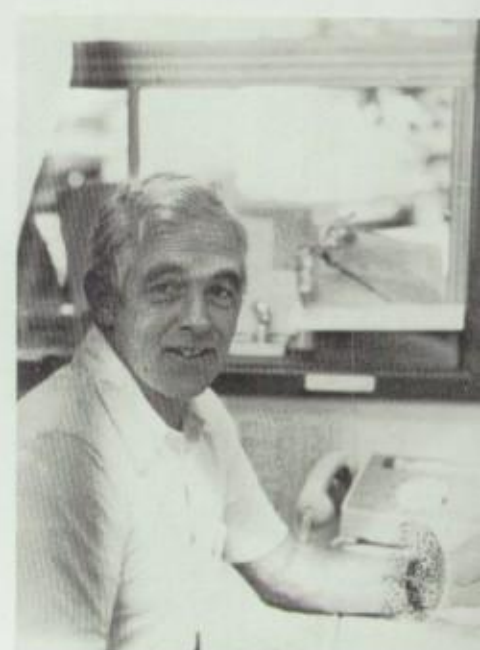

The librarians had many active days with 8,500 books, countless magazines, and a near complete collection of microfilm and microfiche at the students' disposal.

The videotape recorder and player has also proved to be useful in many classes.

Although the staff was in the process of ordering and carding new books, the atmosphere in the library was relaxed and controlled.

The arena scheduling at the end of summer went over well with the counselors. Ms. Weightman thinks back, "It was a good experience for the students" who were frequently to the point of tears. "It seemed that the seniors took more time with their schedules which I felt was a good thing," ended Ms. Weightman.

The counselors kept busy all year round between scheduling, college entrance exams, scholarship applications and students personal problems.

1. Ms. Seften, Ms. Argue and Ms. Derby try to become a quiz show panel on "Name That Book". 2. Ms. Weightman takes a breather from her busy day. 3. Ms. Negri takes a call on her "hotline". 4. Mr. Bright waits for the inevitable phone ringing. 5. Mr. Seely leans back for a minute.

Supernarcs On Patrol

The basic everyday jobs of our Campus Supervisors are to send kids to class, keep them from cutting, stop smoking except in smoking area, and to stop disagreements (verbal or other). Mrs. Nissen, who has been with us for four years, also takes care of detention after school.

Donna Chenette, who has worked as a supervisor for seven years, the last two at the Ranch, rates us as A-1. "The schools aren't very different from each other, but this school may even be better." Donna concludes, "I like the kids." Mrs. Nissen added, "She's just a kid herself."

They both put in a hard seven hour day. The other supervisors are part-time, working 4 hours a day.

Secretaries Know the Answers

Without the smooth and efficient work of our secretaries, the operation of Rancho Cotate would have many rough edges.

These ladies do a variety of services from running an information desk and tending to school needs, to aiding lost and bewildered students.

"The secret of success in this job," remarked Ms. Miller, "is to have the answer before the question is asked."

1. Ms. Bell and Ms. Miller go over plays for the evening football game. 2. Ms. Miller goofs off while (3) Ms. Bell gets swamped with paperwork.

Thanks to the secretaries, their kindness and willingness to lend a helping hand, our school can function orderly and sensibly.

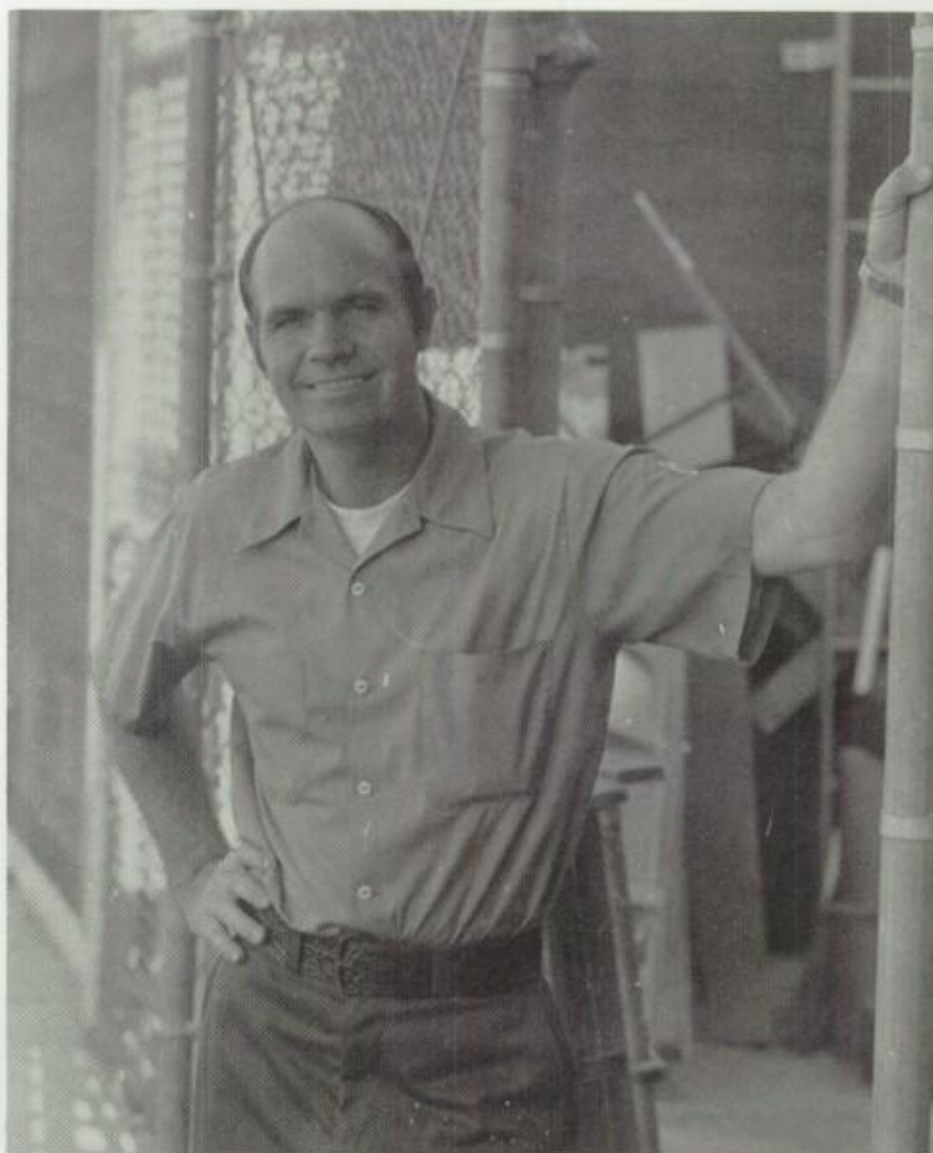

1. Ms. Anderson, Ms. Katen, and Ms. Ballance snicker over the latest creative, but unbelievable, excuses. 2. Ms. Weaver loves being here. 3. "Yes, may I help you?" queries Ms. Gillespie.

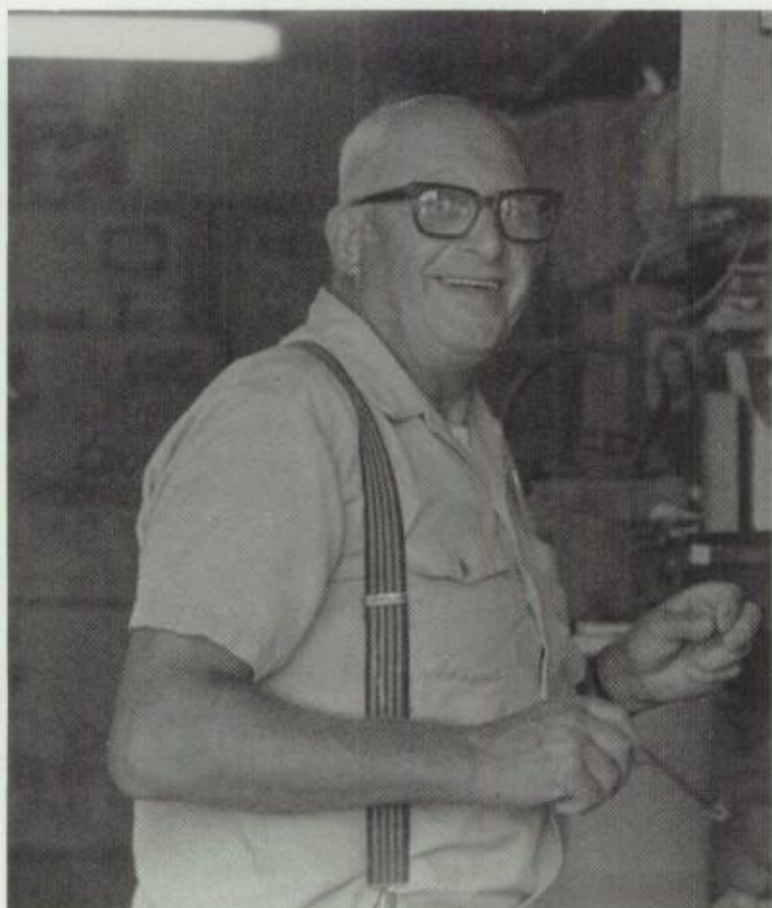

Fixing It Up

When asked if he liked the Ranch, Sam Harris, head custodian, replied, "Yes, I do like it here, it's a neat plant to work in. I like the students and the staff both." Mr. Harris found his work interesting, challenging, with always something new and different to do. His co-workers were a great group of custodians and working with them was a pleasure.

The cafeteria kitchen started buzzing about 7:00 every school day morning. The cooks began preparing the daily menu which was made and produced by every school cafeteria in the district. They prepared approximately 100 Type A lunches every day for the Ranch students, as well as cater 380 lunches to elementary schools. They were a very busy crew.

Footage on the Paw Prints

The Paw Prints' staff worked very hard this year to see that every paper was completed to perfection by deadline time. Many gave up their lunches and free time after school to make sure that the paper was something to be proud of. Double proud was Mr. Owen, Paw Prints' advisor, who saw a nine year dream become a reality when the editors put out a bi-weekly
1 newsletter called Brief Paws.

1. Dean Martellaro and Al Alva share the secrets of the press. 2. Jannita Cooley works hard to type a story before a deadline. 3. Mr. Owen, Meghan O'Brien, Jeff Gershaw, Jeff Audette, Robin Whitmore, Donna Puskar, Dean Martellaro and Amy Pardini do their thing in journalism. 4. Richard Pardini and Donna Puskar share a tender moment after a deadline.

Making Beautiful Music

Although the Marching Band was smaller this year, it did not affect their busy schedule. Between parades and performances, where they took high honors, they also found time to raise money by working concession stands and selling Spook Insurance at Halloween.

The Band went to many exciting parades, including the Shriner's game in Palo Alto on December 31. At football games during half time, the Band performed while the Flag Girls did graceful routines. Teri Brennan, Band President, and Mr. Wright, Band Director, helped to keep the timing of each together.

In Concert Choir, Mr. Wright emphasized word enunciation, volume control, and tonal quality this year for a sound not unlike an angelic choir.

They performed at many concerts, traveled to other schools to sing, and at Christmastime, appeared in their traditional broadcast on KTOB radio.

Though fewer in number this year, the Concert Choir increased their vocal abilities and skills.

Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Lesly Meyer, sat with the Petaluma School Board members to determine answers to the complex questions which they faced this year. Rancho Cotate High bid them "Adieu". Next fall the new Cotati-Rohnert Park Unified School district greets a new superintendent, Dr. Robert McConnell, and a new school board.

We Know How to Say It

The Ranch Speech Club participated in individual speaking events as part of the Golden Gate Speech Association, which includes schools from San Francisco to the Oregon border. Events included Original Orator, Expository Speaking, Extemporaneous and Impromptu Speaking, Dramatic and Humorous Interpretation, and Programmed Reading. Tournaments were held at member schools throughout the area. They traveled to Eureka for one and were hosts for a tournament here at Rancho Cotate in April.

In addition to GGSA, students entered contests sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, the Lions Club, and Native Sons of the Golden West.

An academic award was given at the annual Spring Awards Banquet. They celebrated their high achievements for the year by treating themselves to a big picnic this spring.

We Made It!

How's the Yearbook this year?

"Oooooohh, neat, keen! It's gonna be great!" exclaims Melonie Magallanes, the neat keen ICON editor. "We're putting more time and effort into it this year, it will be of better quality, with more art work."

Melonie added, "I enjoy most the people on the staff. They're great, they're a good group of kids and they deserve a lot of credit."

The yearbook has more color this year. A great artist, Sean Mick, who is also the Art Editor, designed the divider pages. The layout format was more complicated this year and it demanded much more detailed time and attention than has been required in the past.

"We have a lot of fun in Yearbook class. It's a lot of laughs and it's also a lot of hard work," continues Melonie. "Even though we love each other, we get on one another's case every now and then when making decisions and getting out the work."

We Shot It!

ICON is one of the few yearbooks which depends heavily on student photographers. "Most yearbooks use professional photographers and it's great that the ICON gives students a chance to develop and improve their abilities and skills," said Mr. Lyon, photo teacher. "The students get the practice at someone else's expense because they are shooting for the yearbook."

The Photo Class was developed to teach students to shoot pictures, develop film (black and white), and to print and enlarge photos. Mr. Lyon was very pleased with this year's class, adding, "Shooting pictures for the yearbook is exciting because it gives the students something specific to do. About half the class is taking an active part in the ICON." They were Jeff Audette, Wendy Carroll, Joe Freeman, Jeff Holt, Bertha Kinzer, Pat O'Brien, Peter Poz, Dave Sawka, Bill Stoughton, Matt Moore, and Glenn Rudd. "Jeff Holt is particularly helpful in putting it together for ICON deadlines," concluded Mr. Lyon.

International Understanding

1 Homestay America Exchange is an organization of California credentialed teachers. Organized in 1975, HAE specializes in encouraging international understanding by giving its students the broadest possible personal contact with the culture and people they are visiting. Forty Japanese students studied in Sonoma County, California during the initial year. Rancho Cotate High School, in Rohnert Park, California, was the pilot school. During 1976 and 1977, a total of 400 HAE exchange students attended schools in 11 California cities. This year, 300 students and counselors will arrive in Los Angeles to begin another exciting three-week homestay program in 12 California communities.

A Way to the Future

Our Career Center has a variety of services that are offered to the students of Rancho Cotate and the community. Vocational counseling can be obtained from Mr. Rusk. You can get information about the many different occupations, where to get training, opportunities in that field, and possible income. The Career Center offered lunchtime seminars. Speakers came to talk about various careers, colleges, trade schools, and military opportunities.

This year the Career Center hired two people from the C.E.T.A. (Comprehensive Employment Training Act), Teresa Deasy and Larry Dolinsky. Ms. Deasy, Career Center Specialist, helped with students, set up seminars and other activities. Mr. Dolinsky, a career education instructor, worked closely with the Career Decision Making classes.

Mr. Rusk, Vocational Counselor, explored with students possible choices in both vocation and college work.

Mr. Logsdon, Work Experience Coordinator, is also located in the Career Center. He works with students who are working outside of school for school credit. He is also in charge of ROP enrollments. Ms. Gregg is Mr. Logsdon's secretary.

The R.O.P. Food Services class taught cooking, cashier, and waitress skills. Ms. Enfield believed in practical experience, which was gained by selecting menus, preparing food, and serving meals to customers. It didn't take very long for the community to learn that the food served at "ROPE" was delicious.

The R.O.P. Electronics class provided training for entry level jobs in industry. Students completing the program are placed in jobs, in advanced training, or in the military. "It seems as if the students are more interested in getting jobs this year," said Mr. Holden, instructor.

RANCH THEATRICS

"Bah! Humbug!" was how "Mr. Scrooge" welcomed the Christmas Spirits to the Ranch in Dec. '77. The classic Dickens' story, presented as the fall Drama Production, was a huge success. The play brought a little of the holiday spirit to the Ranch. All of the actors shined in their performances and Richard Pardini was outstanding as Scrooge. He lent a touch of realism to one scene when he nearly choked to death on some shaving cream. Fine performances were given by the main supporting cast: Spirit of Christmas Present, Sean Mick; Bob Cratchit, Jim Green; and the Spirit of Christmas Past, Mary Rome. Other cast members were: Rachel Rome, Randy Bullen, Jim Ashly, Brian Miller, and Suzi Sperry. The direction was handled by Ellen Belluomini, and Barbara McGowan. Todd Davis was set designer and technical director.

DANCE DANCE DANCE

Is dancing your "thing"? Rancho Cotate was the place to be in '78 for disco-ing to the latest sounds. Yet, like anything else, the dance program for '78 had its low points too. Whitefire opened the year, and a great time was had by all who were there. They had everybody dancing to the beat with their spectacular rendition of "Fire" by the Ohio Players. New Moon returned to play the Homecoming and they blasted the dancers away with their version of the "Theme from Star Wars." Argon was here in the fall and they played Steve Miller's songs better than Steve. They rounded off the night with a long instrumental set and a fantastic drum solo that ended with the drummer throwing away his sticks and attacking the drums bare-handed. The low point of the year came in January with the Turnabout. The band was "Funktion" and they sounded like they left their "Funk" at home. What can you say about a band that screws up the song "Brick House"? Hopefully their playing will be remembered so they will be forgotten the next time there is a dance. But all in all, good times were had and that's what is ¹ important.

The Force Was With Us

Star Wars invaded campus during Fall Spirit Week. Star Wars characters and outer-space creatures paraded the campus. They were probably the strangest assortment of "Things" Rancho Cotate has ever seen.

Spirit Week activities included Class Distinction, Outer-space, and School Colors Days. A rally was held before school on the last day of Spirit Week. A good turn out of students yelled their lungs out to make this rally the best one of the year.

The Seniors won the Spirit Award by receiving the most amount of points during the week's events. These events ranged from toilet paper races and tricycle races to the tug-of-war between classes.

RANCH RALLIES ...

Rallies in '78 were the usual mixture of yells and yawns. The yells coming from enthusiastic participation, such as class shouting matches and well done routines; the yawns coming from the poor music system and the slow pace of the rallies as a whole.

Some of the year's highlights were: the "STAR WARS" routine done by the Songleaders for Spirit Week; the pie fight during the January rally; and the performances by the Very Special Group of Songleaders (Randy Bullen, Mike Resso, Brian Pennington and Gary Magallanes) in drag.

The definite high point of the rally season in '78 was the appearance of a group of faculty members who danced, sang, and jumped around; and then led the entire audience in a special salute ...

...The entire gym echoed to the cry of "EX-LAX! EX-LAX!" as the teachers cavorted gaily around the gym. It was a sight never to be forgotten. The names of the faculty members who participated are being withheld to prevent them and their families from further embarrassment. A special note of thanks goes to Mark Alton, who not only participated in the Ex-Lax cheer, but also dressed as a chicken during Spirit Week. The cheerleaders and songleaders were present in all their splendor, and they provided the usual entertaining skits and routines.

Spiritleaders Cheer On

The 1977-78 Rancho Cotate Spiritleaders packed up their bags and went to cheerleading camps over the summer to learn routines, cheers, rally ideas, and fund raising activities.

The Varsity Cheerleaders and Songleaders went to Stanford National Cheerleading Camp (N.C.A.) in Palo Alto in late August and came home with dozens of ribbons and the spirit stick.

The Junior Varsity Cheerleaders went to the United Spirit Association Camp in Santa Barbara where they proudly earned 24 ribbons and the "hardest working" trophy.

The Freshman Cheerleaders also worked hard all summer raising money to buy their sharp looking uniforms.

With all their awards and trophies, the Spiritleaders proved that they were qualified to cheer for the mighty Cougars.

The Royal Force Rules

The Queen and her escorts made a very impressive showing during the Homecoming half time of a great game against the El Molino Lions. Being driven in Triumphs, Porsches, and Fiats, the candidates emerged proud and beautiful. Leading the caravan was 1976 Homecoming Queen, Shelly Richtik with Rick Santero.

1. Holly Collins and her escort, Don Guevel chit chat with Steve Sanchez. 2. Cheryl Timko and her escort, Ken Woodie, enter the grandstand. 3. Queen Cheryl Bonomi and her escort, John Curtin, stand and face the cheers of the crowd.

The tension was high as all the fans awaited the opening of the rose boxes. When Cheryl Bonomi pulled out the yellow rose, her escort shone with pride. Cheryl, however, blushed with excitement and everyone poured forth with their compliments and tears of joy.

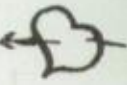

Later that evening, there was a very lively dance held in the M.U. to celebrate the new queen and the victory of 26-0 over El Molino.

B.S.U. and C.S.F. Reach Out

The Black Student Union was started in September of this year, and was formed because the students felt that there should be a social group welcoming and helping new students in the school. It hasn't increased or decreased in size since they founded the club and they welcome any one who would like to join.

The C.S.F. (California Scholarship Federation) goal is to encourage academic excellence in high school. The members kept their minds alert by attending plays, visiting college campuses and other worthwhile field trips. Mr. Buhn, advisor, says of the group, "Our chapter of C.S.F. was formed to recognize high scholarship."

Student Council

The Student Council got to work very early this year on beautifying the school. Their landscaping scheme included new plants and boulders. To help the plants and guard against muddy ground, they laid red brick paths for students to walk on. The Council also did a good job with the spirit week theme "Star Wars at the Ranch," considering they had less than a month to organize it. One more important issue, Mr. Brock brought the Council together to help fight the school board on candy sales. "A lot of people are going to be affected if they stop the sales of candy," he said. This year was an active one for the Student Council.

Concerned About the Key to the Future

Clubs were popping up all over campus this year, ranging from the F.B.L.A. (Future Business Leaders of America) to the Concerned Christians on Campus to the Key Club.

Each club had their own rules and responsibilities, but all had one thing in common; a desire to band together to further their goals. All of the clubs worked very hard raising funds.

The Spanish Club has been at the Ranch for seven years. Ms. Marshall, Advisor, feels the club teaches responsibility. Members participated in selling football programs at the games. Their carnation sales were very successful as money raising events.

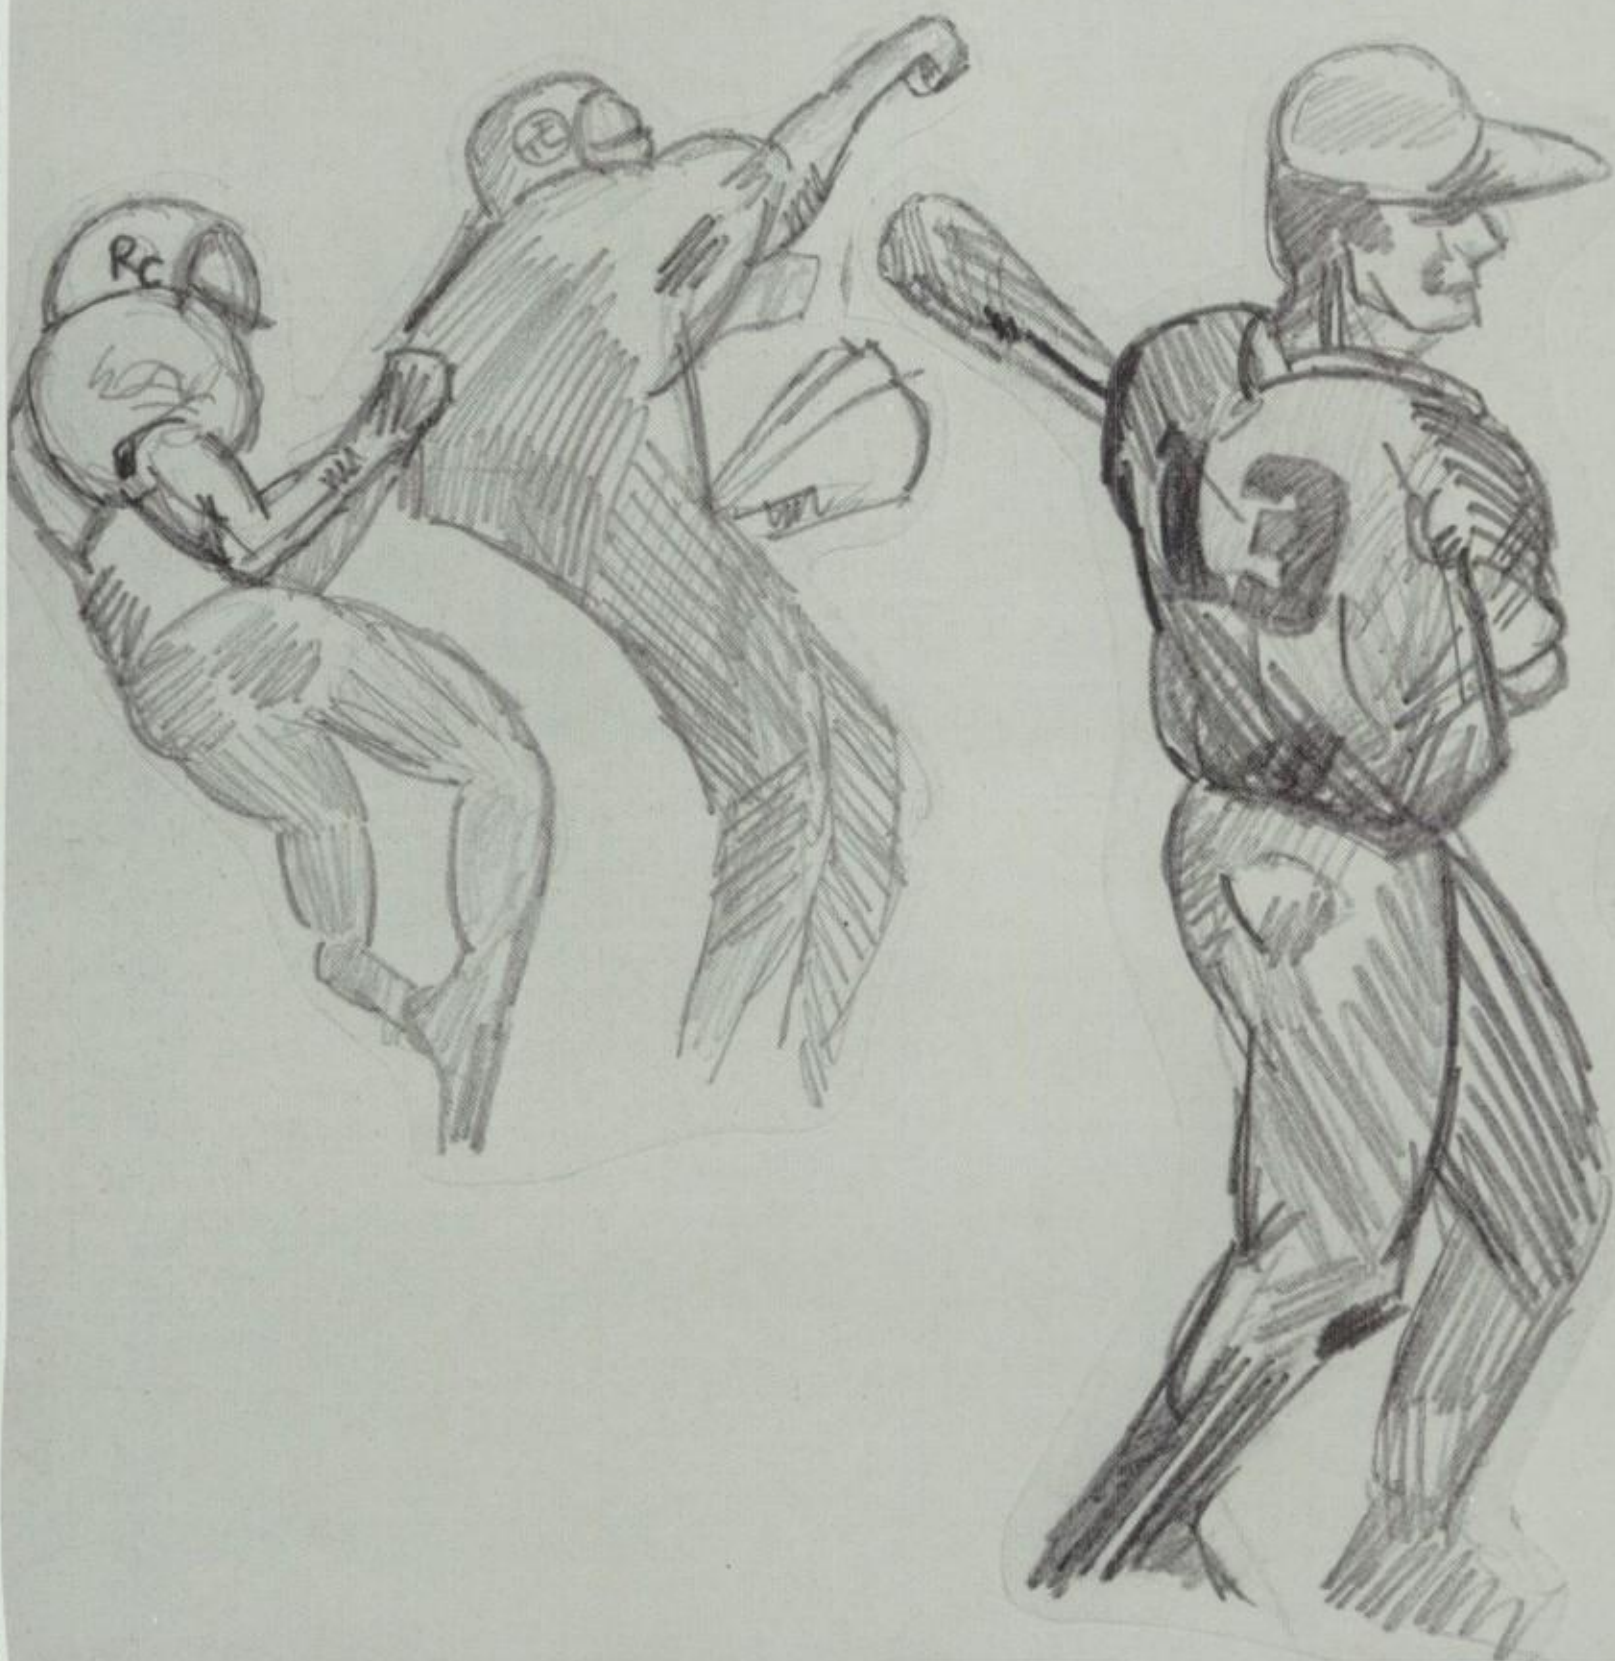

The Grench Club is an organization devoted to German and French culture. The club consists of students who have studied the French or German language, although it is not a requirement. The club took trips to San Francisco and held many fund-raising events. You may notice T-shirted students around whose shirts sport the club symbol, "The Grinch".

Juniors—So Close and Yet So Far

The Junior Class prepared for the Junior Senior Prom, working hard to earn money all year to throw a really impressive and beautiful Prom Dance. They held a successful December rose sale, threw a wonderful Homecoming Dance, took charge of football and basketball concessions, and held candy and bake sales.

The Fall Officers were: Adrian Willis, president; Candi Weiser, Vice-President; Kim Luttrell, Secretary; Karen Wambold, Treasurer; and Chris Bailey, Representative.

The supportive and helpful advisors were Ms. Caviness, Ms. Aiona, Mr. Harm, with Ms. Beltz as an unofficial assistant.
